Canterbury. St. Augustine's Gateway. This Gateway of the ancient Abbey of St. Peter and St. Paul, founded by St. Augustine himself early in the 7th century on ground given by Ethelbert, first Christian King of Kent. This entrance gate was built by Abbot Fyndon in 1300; its massive oaken doors are of the same date and retain their traceried panelling. Very interesting discoveries have recently been made on the site of the Abbey, which with fine buildings by Butterfield is now St. Augustine's Missionary College.
